

8 June 2011

To Whom It May Concern

Dear Sir or Madam,

Re: Rork Interiors

During the latter half of 2010, Logica identified that it was rapidly outgrowing its office space in Braddon. Rather than moving into new premises, we decided to lease an adjoining unit and take the opportunity to redesign and refit the extended layout to match our current operational requirements which, in particular, placed a greater emphasis on the physical security of our assets.

Our objective was to source a well credentialed firm with experience in the Canberra market and one who was committed to our project and capable of integrating our strict security requirements into the design.

Rork Interiors were recommended to us by a business associate and their senior managers actually made time to visit our Head Office during a trip to Sydney to get a first hand feel for our office standards and fitout style. After presentation of an acceptable design and pricing proposal, Logica subsequently appointed them to undertake the project under a design and construct contract.

Our requirement for the contractor to manage a complete redesign and refit of the office, whilst allowing us to maintain a business as usual approach with our clients, presented a significant challenge to Rorks and I am pleased to say they coped extremely well.

The Project Manager, Brandon Sheppard and Site Foreman, Anthony Kennedy did everything possible to ensure that inconvenience to our staff was kept to an absolute minimum. They were both extremely co-operative and flexible in the face of late changes made to the scope of our works and they were always willing to go out of their way to offer solutions and work around problems encountered during the course of the project.

Contract variations that were not attributable to those late changes in scope were kept to a minimum and Rorks were extremely mindful of our budget and they regularly presented alternatives to help offset or avoid certain costs.

Overall we found Rorks treatment to be extremely fair and reasonable and the work ethic of their staff and contractors was exemplary.

We would therefore have no hesitation in recommending Rork Interiors to others who are seeking a reliable and professional partner to work with on an office fitout project.

Yours faithfully,

Rob Stirling
Facilities and Administration Manager